HATE
CRIME STATISTICS | 2003

Foreword

A well-known robber named Willie Sutton was once asked why he robbed banks. He answered: "Because that's where the money is."

Criminal motivation is not always so straightforward—especially with crimes motivated by the offender's bias. The FBI's Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program has been collecting statistics on crimes motivated by a bias against a race, religion, sexual orientation, or ethnicity/national origin since 1992 and against a disability since 1994. The hate crime data collection program is viewed by many as the essential first step toward quantifying these occurrences in our Nation.

During 2003, nearly 12,000 law enforcement agencies identified 7,489 criminal incidents that were motivated by the offender's irrational antagonism toward some personal attribute associated with the victim. In Hate Crime Statistics, 2003, the FBI through its UCR hate crime data collection program publishes the data collected by these agencies about the 8,715 offenses, the 9,100 victims, and 6,934 offenders involved in these incidents.

Recognizing that participation by law enforcement and the public is essential to achieving a national hate crime database, the UCR Program has been proactive in expanding law enforcement's reporting and increasing public awareness of its hate crime program. In addition to publishing this report, the FBI has traveled to hundreds of sites and trained thousands of law enforcement personnel, teaching them to recognize and properly document bias-motivated incidents. As an adjunct to this training, the Program worked for more than two years to develop a Web-based hate crime identification and scoring curriculum. This self-paced course for law enforcement has been available through the Law Enforcement OnLine Internet since the summer of 2002.   Further, the FBI continues to encourage law enforcement agencies to report crime statistics via the National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS). Through the NIBRS, agencies can provide more detailed information about each criminal incident, including incidents involving hate crimes.

Reaching out to the public, the UCR Program has published hate crime training materials on the FBI's Internet site, encouraging private citizens to review and use these materials. Also, the FBI makes copies of this publication available at no charge to all who request them.

As information-sharing technology improves in the coming years, the UCR Program will make every effort to assure that hate crime data collection has a high priority in the developing criminal justice information-sharing systems. The UCR Program is committed to achieving a national hate crime database that will support valid observations and legitimate assumptions about these types of crimes—information that may ultimately raise the public consciousness to a level that prompts remedial actions.

The national Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program would like to hear from you.

The staff at the national UCR Program are continually striving to improve the publications. We would appreciate it if the primary user of this publication would complete the evaluation form at the end of this book and either mail it to us at the indicated address or fax it: (304) 625-5394.

Introduction

Background

On April 23, 1990, Congress passed the Hate Crime Statistics Act. This law required the Attorney General to collect data "about crimes that manifest evidence of prejudice based on race, religion, sexual orientation, or ethnicity." The Attorney General delegated the responsibilities of developing the procedures for implementing, collecting, and managing hate crime data to the Director of the FBI, who in turn assigned the tasks to the UCR Program. Under the direction of the Attorney General and with the cooperation and assistance of many local and state law enforcement agencies, the UCR Program created a hate crime data collection system to comply with the congressional mandate. The UCR Program's first publication on the subject was Hate Crime Statistics, 1990: A Resource Book, which was a compilation of hate crime data reported by 11 states that had collected them under state authority in 1990 and were willing to offer their data as a prototype. The UCR Program continued to work with agencies familiar with investigating hate crimes and collecting related information so that it could develop and implement a more uniform method of data collection on a nationwide scale. Hate Crime Statistics, 1992, presented the first data reported by law enforcement agencies across the country that participated in UCR hate crime data collection.

Lawmakers amended the Hate Crime Statistics Act to include bias against persons with disabilities by passing the Violent Crime and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 in September of that year. The FBI started gathering data for the additional bias type on January 1, 1997.

Finally, the Church Arson Prevention Act, which was signed into law in July 1996, removed the sunset clause from the original statute and mandated that hate crime data collection become a permanent part of the UCR Program. (Appendix I provides the referenced legislation as amended.)

Collection Design

The designers of the national hate crime data collection program sought to capture information about the types of bias that motivate crimes, the nature of the offenses, and some information about the victims and offenders. In creating the program, the designers recognized that hate crimes are not separate, distinct crimes; instead, they are traditional offenses motivated by the offender's bias. (For example, an offender assaults a victim because he is biased against the victim's race.) After much consideration, the developers agreed that hate crime data could be derived by capturing the additional element of bias in those offenses already being reported to the UCR Program. Attaching the collection of hate crime statistics to the established UCR data collection procedures, they concluded, would fulfill the directives of the Hate Crime Statistics Act without placing an undue additional reporting burden on law enforcement and, in time, would develop a substantial body of data about the nature and frequency of bias crimes occurring throughout the Nation.

Participation

Law enforcement's support and participation have been the most vital factors in moving the hate crime data collection effort from concept to reality. The International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Sheriffs' Association, the former UCR Data Providers Advisory Policy Board (which is now part of the Criminal Justice Information Services Advisory Policy Board), the International Association of Directors of Law Enforcement Standards and Training, and the Association of State UCR Programs all have endorsed the UCR Program's hate crime program. In addition to this support, thousands of law enforcement agencies nationwide make a crucial contribution to the national Program's success because it is the officers within these agencies who investigate offenses, determine whether a hate crime was committed, and report the offense as a known hate crime.

In 2003, more than 17,000 city, county, and state law enforcement agencies reported crime data to the national UCR Program via Summary reporting or the National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS). Of that total, 11,909 law enforcement agencies voluntarily submitted data to the hate crime program either through state UCR Programs or directly (agencies in non-Program states). (Appendix B of this publication provides a directory of state UCR Programs.) Those agencies that participated in the hate crime data collection program represented nearly 241 million inhabitants, or 82.8 percent, of the Nation's population, and their jurisdictions covered 49 states and the District of Columbia. The table on the following page presents the number of agencies participating in UCR and hate crime reporting by population group and the population covered collectively by those agencies within each group.

Methodology

The FBI collects hate crime data regarding criminal offenses that are motivated, in whole or in part, by the offender's bias against a race, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity/national origin, or disability, and committed against persons, property, or society. Because motivation is subjective, it is difficult to know with certainty whether a crime was the result of the offender's bias, which alone does not mean that a hate crime was invariably involved. Law enforcement investigation is crucial because it must reveal sufficient evidence to lead a reasonable and prudent person to conclude that the offender's actions were motivated, in whole or in part, by his or her bias. Only then can law enforcement report an incident as a hate crime.

Data Collection

The law enforcement agencies that participate in the national hate crime program collect details about an offender's bias motivation associated with the following 11 offense types already being reported to the UCR Program: murder and nonnegligent manslaughter, forcible rape, aggravated assault, simple assault, intimidation (crimes against persons); and robbery, burglary, larceny-theft, motor vehicle theft, arson, and destruction/damage/vandalism (crimes against property). The law enforcement agencies that participate in the UCR Program via the NIBRS collect additional offenses for crimes against persons and crimes against property, which the UCR Program publishes in Hate Crime Statistics as "Other." These agencies also collect hate crime data for another category called crimes against society, which includes drug or narcotic offenses, gambling offenses, and prostitution offenses. Together, the offense classification other and the crime category crimes against society include 35 Group "A" Offenses (not listed) that are captured in the NIBRS, which also collects the previously mentioned 11 offense categories. (The Uniform Crime Reporting Handbook, NIBRS edition [1992], provides an explanation of all 46 Group "A" Offenses.)

The UCR Program data collection guidelines stipulate that a hate crime may involve multiple offenses, victims, and offenders within one incident; therefore, the hate crime data collection program is incident-based. In submitting data to the national UCR Program, law enforcement counts one offense for each victim of crimes against persons. When submitting crimes against property, however, law enforcement counts one offense for each distinct incident, regardless of the number of victims. Likewise, law enforcement agencies submitting data through NIBRS count one offense for each distinct incident (not victim) of crimes against society.

The national UCR Program uses the minimally accepted designations for race and ethnicity as established by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and published in the Federal Register. The revised standards have five minimum categories for data on race and two categories for data on ethnicity. In complying with the published standards, the FBI uses the following racial designations in its hate crime data collection program: White, Black, American Indian or Alaskan Native, Asian or Pacific Islander, and Multiple Races, Group. The ethnic designations are Hispanic and Other Ethnicity/ National Origin.

Data Reporting

Law enforcement agencies may capture hate crime data in one of three ways: via NIBRS submissions, in an electronic hate crime record layout, or on the Hate Crime Incident Report and the Quarterly Hate Crime Report forms. The media on which the state UCR Programs may forward hate crime data to the national Program include magnetic cartridges, disks, or electronic record layouts sent via E-mail; and traditional paper forms. Most agencies reporting data electronically to the national UCR Program via the NIBRS use a data element within their reporting software that indicates the incident involved a bias motivation. Because the data element applies to all 46 of the Group "A" Offenses, it enables agencies to indicate whether any of the 35 additional offenses were bias motivated. Furthermore, these agencies can report considerably more information about the hate crime incident since the NIBRS is an incident-based, comprehensive data collection system. Though the additional data are not maintained in the hate crime database, they are available in the NIBRS master files.

Law enforcement agencies that prefer electronic submissions but do not report via NIBRS may use the hate crime record layout specified in the publication Hate Crime Magnetic Media Specifications for Tapes & Diskettes (January 1997). As long as they have the national Program's approval, agencies may use any of the previously mentioned electronic media to submit the data.

Agencies that choose the Hate Crime Incident Report and the Quarterly Hate Crime Report forms supply the national UCR Program with information about each hate crime incident including the offense type and its respective bias motivation, the number and type of victims, the location of the incident, the number of known offenders, and the known offender's race. During a calendar quarter, law enforcement agencies submit a Hate Crime Incident Report for each bias-motivated incident. At the end of each calendar quarter, reporting agencies submit a Quarterly Hate Crime Report, on which agencies include the total number of incidents reported for the quarter and delete any previously reported incidents that were through subsequent investigation determined not to be bias-motivated. If no hate crime incidents occurred in their jurisdiction that quarter, the agency must still submit the Quarterly Hate Crime Report to report zero hate crime incidents.

Notes

When examining the data contained in this report, data users should be aware that the first line following each table number presents in boldface type that table's unit of count, i.e., incident, offense, victim, or known offender.

To be included in this publication, law enforcement agencies must have submitted hate crime data for at least 1 month of the calendar year. The published data, therefore, do not necessarily represent reports from each participating agency for 12 months or 4 quarters. Section II of this publication furnishes individual state and agency information, including the number of quarters for which the agency reported data to the national Program.

Based on the revised standards from the Office of Management and Budget for defining Metropolitan Statistical Areas, the UCR Program now refers to suburban counties as metropolitan counties and rural counties as nonmetropolitan counties. (Section I, Summary of the UCR Program, of Crime in the United States, 2003, provides more information about the creation of new statistical compilation areas in the Recent Developments section.)

Valid assessments about crime, including hate crime, are possible only with careful study and analysis of the various unique conditions affecting each local law enforcement jurisdiction. (The article "Crime Factors" in the beginning of each edition of Crime in the United States [accessible at the FBI's Internet site at www.fbi.gov] presents a comprehensive discussion of the many factors that affect crime in a jurisdiction.) Therefore the reader is cautioned against simplistic comparisons of the statistical data of this program with that of others with differing methodologies or even comparing individual reporting units solely on the basis of their agency type.

Section I—Hate Crime Statistics, 2003

The UCR Program collects data for crimes motivated by biases against a race, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity/national origin, or disability. Each bias type is further broken down into a more specific bias. For example, when a law enforcement agency determines that a hate crime was committed because of a bias against an individual's race, the agency may then classify the bias as anti-white; anti-black; anti-American Indian/Alaskan Native; anti-Asian/Pacific Islander; or anti-multiple races, group, which describes a group of victims in which more than one race is represented.

Hate crime data collection guidelines stipulate that officers can identify single-bias incidents, i.e., those that involve one type of bias, and multiple-bias incidents, i.e., those that involve two or more offense types motivated by two or more biases. Additionally, the UCR Program collects multiple offenses, victims, and offenders within one hate crime incident.

During 2003, 11,909 law enforcement agencies provided the UCR Program with 1 to 12 months of hate crime reports. Of those agencies, 1,967 agencies (16.5 percent) reported 7,489 hate crime incidents involving 8,715 offenses, 9,100 victims, and 6,934 known offenders. (See Tables 1 and 12.)

Incidents and Offenses

Among the 7,489 reported hate crime incidents in 2003, 7,485 were single-bias incidents. Investigators reported 4 multiple-bias hate crime incidents in 2003. (See Table 1.)

Within the 7,485 single-bias incidents reported in 2003, 51.4 percent of the hate crime incidents were committed because of the offenders' racial bias. Nearly 18 percent (17.9) were due to religious bias, 16.6 percent were attributed to sexual-orientation bias, and 13.7 percent occurred because of an ethnicity/national origin bias. Disability bias motivated 0.4 percent of single-bias incidents. (Based on Table 1.)

In 2003, the single-bias hate crime incidents reported to law enforcement involved 8,706 offenses. The 4 multiple-bias incidents that officers reported in 2003 encompassed 9 different offenses. (See Table 1.)

By Crime Category

The UCR Program categorizes offenses as crimes against persons, crimes against property, and crimes against society. (See Methodology.) Law enforcement agencies reported 5,517 offenses as crimes against persons, which accounted for 63.3 percent of reported hate crimes in 2003. Investigators determined that 3,139 offenses, 36.0 percent of reported hate crimes, were crimes against property. Fifty-nine offenses (0.7 percent) were crimes against society. (See Table 2.)

By Bias Motivation

Racial bias motivated more than half (52.5 percent) of the 8,706 single-bias hate crime offenses reported in 2003. Religious bias and sexual-orientation bias each accounted for 16.4 percent of all reported single-bias hate crimes reported. Ethnicity/national origin bias prompted 14.2 percent of offenses, and disability bias spurred 0.5 percent of bias-motivated offenses. (Based on Table 1.)

In 2003, law enforcement reported 4,574 single-bias offenses that were motivated by the offender's bias against race. Among those offenses, 66.3 percent were perpetrated because of an anti-black bias, and 21.2 percent were due to an anti-white bias. Just over 6 percent (6.1) of racially-motivated hate crimes were driven by an anti-Asian/Pacific Islander bias, 1.8 percent involved a bias against American Indians/Alaskan Natives, and 4.7 percent were directed at groups of individuals in which more than one race was represented (multiple races, group). (Based on Table 1.)

Law enforcement reported that 1,426 single-bias hate crime offenses resulted from a religious bias: 69.2 percent were an anti-Jewish bias, 10.9 percent were an anti-Islamic bias, 8.3 percent were an anti-other (unspecified) religion bias, 5.5 percent were an anti-Catholic bias, 3.5 percent were an anti-Protestant bias, and 0.9 percent were an anti-atheism/agnosticism bias. Nearly 2 percent (1.8) of anti-religious hate crime offenses in 2003 were due to a bias against groups of individuals of varying religions (multiple religions, group). (Based on Table 1.)

Within the 1,430 single-bias hate crime offenses perpetrated due to a sexual-orientation bias, law enforcement identified 61.6 percent as having an anti-male homosexual bias. In addition, 21.3 percent were due to an anti-homosexual bias, 15.4 percent were committed because of an anti-female homosexual bias, 1.0 percent were driven by an anti-heterosexual bias, and 0.6 percent involved an anti-bisexual bias. (See Table 1.)

Law enforcement agencies classify hate crimes motivated by a bias against an ethnicity/national origin into one of two categories: anti-Hispanic or anti-other ethnicity/national origin. In 2003, investigators reported 1,236 single-bias hate crime offenses that were committed because of an ethnicity/national origin bias. Nearly 43 percent (42.8) were due to an anti-Hispanic ethnicity bias, and 57.2 percent were directed at other ethnicities/national origins. (See Table 1.)

Among hate crimes committed because of a bias against a disability, investigators classify the offense as having an anti-physical disability bias or an anti-mental disability bias. Of the 40 single-bias hate crime offenses committed in 2003 because of a bias against a disability, law enforcement agencies reported that 30 were provoked by an anti-physical disability bias, and 10 were committed because of an anti-mental disability bias. (See Table 1.)

By Offense Type

An analysis of the 8,715 hate crime offenses that were reported in 2003 showed that intimidation accounted for 31.5 percent of the total. Destruction/damage/vandalism comprised 30.0 percent; simple assault, 20.8 percent; and aggravated assault, 10.6 percent. Crimes against society comprised 0.7 percent of all reported hate crime offenses in 2003. The remaining offenses collectively made up 6.5 percent of the total. (Based on Table 2.)

Law enforcement reported 14 murders that were bias motivated in 2003—6 resulted from a sexual-orientation bias, 5 were racially motivated, 2 were due to an ethnicity/national origin bias, and 1 was because of a disability bias. (See Table 4.)

Officers' investigations determined that 5 forcible rapes in 2003 were bias motivated. Three forcible rapes were committed because of a sexual-orien-tation bias, 1 forcible rape occurred because of a racial bias, and 1 involved a disability bias. (See Table 4.)

Fifty of the 107 robberies that law enforcement identified as being motivated by bias were committed because of the offender's racial bias, and 36 robberies were committed because of a sexual-orientation bias. Seventeen robberies were attributed to an ethnicity/national origin bias, and 4 robberies were committed because of a religious bias. (See Table 4.)

Of the 34 arsons that investigators reported as bias-motivated crimes in 2003, 17 were motivated by a bias against a race, 8 were the result of an ethnicity/national origin bias, 5 were based on a religious bias, and 4 were because of a sexual-orientation bias. (See Table 4.)

By Victim Type

Law enforcement agencies reported 3,139 bias-motivated offenses against property during 2003. A review of these offenses by victim type revealed that 52.1 percent were directed at individuals, 11.2 percent were directed at a business or financial institution, and 7.4 percent were directed at a religious organization. In addition, 7.0 percent were directed against government, and 0.1 percent of these offenses were directed at society or the public. Law enforcement categorized the remaining 22.3 percent of offenses against property as those directed against other/unknown/multiple victim types. (Based on Table 6.)

Victims

In the hate crime data collection program, the term victim may refer to a person, a business, an institution, or, in some cases, society as a whole. For the 2003 report, law enforcement identified 9,100 victims of 8,715 criminal offenses within 7,489 separate incidents. The following summarizes the data concerning victims of hate crimes as contributed by participating agencies.

By Bias Motivation

More than half (52.3 percent) of all hate crime victims of single-bias incidents in 2003 were the targets of racial prejudice. As percentages of the single-bias victim total, victims of religious bias and victims of sexual-orientation bias were nearly equal: 16.4 percent and 16.3 percent, respectively. Victims of ethnicity/national origin bias made up 14.6 percent of the total victims, and victims of a disability bias accounted for the remainder, 0.5 percent. (Based on Table 1.)

Racial bias motivated hate crimes against 4,754 victims in 2003. The majority of these victims—66.3 percent—were the objects of anti-black bias. Of the remaining victims of single-bias incidents motivated by racial bias, 21.2 percent were victims of anti-white bias, 6.1 percent were victims of anti-Asian/Pacific Islander bias, and 1.8 percent were victims of anti-American Indian/Alaskan Native bias. Victims of anti-multiple races bias, that is, groups in which more than one race was represented, accounted for 4.7 percent of the victims of single-biased racially motivated hate crimes. (Based on Table 1.)

Of the 1,489 victims of single-bias crimes motivated by religious intolerance during 2003, 68.8 percent were victims of anti-Jewish bias. Victims of anti-Islamic bias comprised 11.5 percent of religious-bias victims. Anti-Catholic bias prompted offenses against 5.4 percent of victims of religious bias, and anti-Protestant bias initiated crimes against 3.6 percent of the religious-bias victims. Biases against members of other religious groups (anti-other religion) and those directed at groups comprised of individuals from varying or multiple religious faiths (anti-multiple religions, group) motivated the crimes against 8.1 percent and 1.7 percent of victims, respectively. Anti-atheism/agnosticism biases accounted for nearly 1 percent (0.9) of victims of the crimes caused by a religious bias. (Based on Table 1.)

Antagonism toward a sexual orientation formed the motivation for crimes against 1,479 victims of single-bias incidents in 2003. Among victims of a sexual-orientation bias, 61.5 percent were the victims of anti-male homosexual bias, and 21.2 percent were targets of anti-homosexual bias (male and female). An anti-female homosexual bias contributed to crimes against 15.6 percent of victims of sexual-orientation bias. The remaining victims were targets of anti-heterosexual (1.0 percent) and anti-bisexual (0.7 percent) attitudes. (Based on Table 1.)

In 2003, there were 1,326 victims of single-bias incidents involving anti-ethnicity/national origin bias. Of these, 44.9 percent were victims of anti-Hispanic prejudice, and 55.1 percent were victims of anti-other ethnicity/national origin bias. (Based on Table 1.)

Law enforcement agencies reported that 43 victims in single-bias incidents were assailed because of an anti-physical or anti-mental disability bias in 2003. Of these, 32 were victims of an anti-physical disability bias, and 11 were victims of an anti-mental disability bias. (Based on Table 1.)

There were 9 victims of the 4 multiple-bias incidents reported in 2003. (See Table 1.)

By Offense Category

A review of the 9,100 hate crime victims reported for 2003 revealed that 60.6 percent were victims of crimes against persons, 38.7 percent were victims of crimes against property, and 0.6 percent were victims of crimes against society. (Based on Table 2.)

By Offense Type

For 2003, law enforcement reported 5,517 victims of crimes against persons. These victims were most often the objects of intimidation (49.7 percent), simple assault (32.8 percent), or aggravated assault (16.7 percent). Those who were murdered accounted for 0.3 percent of all hate crime victims, and those who were raped made up 0.1 percent. The remainder, 0.5 percent, were victims of other types of crimes against persons. (Based on Table 2.)

Of the 3,524 victims of crimes against property, 82.3 percent were the objects of destruction/damage/vandalism. Victims of other crimes against property included those of burglary, which accounted for 5.4 percent of victims; larceny-theft, 5.3 percent of victims; robbery, 4.3 percent of victims; and arson, 1.2 percent of victims. Victims of motor vehicle theft comprised 0.4 percent. The remaining victims, 1.0 percent, were targets of various other types of crimes against property. (Based on Table 2.)

Offenders

As defined by the UCR hate crime data collection program, the term known offender does not imply that the suspect's identify is known but that an attribute of the suspect is identified which distinguishes him or her from an unknown offender. On the Hate Crime

Incident Report form, reporting agencies can specify the number of offenders and, when possible, the apparent race of the offender (or offenders as a group).

In 2003, a total of 6,934 known offenders were identified in 7,489 bias-motivated incidents. (See Table 1.) Of the known offenders, 62.3 percent were white and 18.5 percent were black. Groups comprised of individuals of varying races (multiple races, group) accounted for 6.3 percent of known offenders. Reporting agencies identified Asian/Pacific Islander as the race for 1.3 percent and American Indian/Alaskan Native for 0.9 percent of the known offenders. For 10.7 percent of known offenders, the attribute of race was unknown. (Based on Table 9.)

Of the 5,543 known offenders who perpetrated crimes against persons in 2003, 40.3 percent committed simple assault, 36.5 percent committed intimidation, and 22.3 percent committed aggravated assault. Of the 1,558 known offenders who perpetrated crimes against property, 66.9 percent carried out acts of destruction/damage/vandalism, 16.4 percent committed robbery, and 6.7 percent committed larceny-theft. In 2003, 92 known offenders committed 59 hate crime offenses that agencies reported as crimes against society. (Based on Table 2.)

Location

A review of hate crime incidents by location revealed that nearly one-third—32.0 percent—of all single-bias hate crime incidents occurred in or near residences or homes in 2003. Highways, roads, alleys, or streets were the locations of 17.6 percent of the total incidents, and schools or colleges were the sites of 11.8 percent of hate crime occurrences. Six percent of hate crime incidents happened in a parking lot or garage, and 3.8 percent took place at a church, synagogue, or temple. The locations of 12.5 percent of hate crime incidents were unknown or unspecified, and the remaining incidents, 16.3 percent, occurred in a variety of locations. (Based on Table 10.)

By Bias Motivation

An analysis of bias-motivated offenses with regard to location showed that of the 3,844 incidents sparked by racial prejudice, 33.8 percent occurred at a home or residence. Over 19 percent (19.2) occurred on a highway, road, alley, or street, and 12.5 percent happened at a school or college. (Based on Table 10.)

Of the 1,343 incidents caused by religious intolerance, 29.8 percent occurred at a home or residence, and 16.9 percent took place at a church, synagogue, or temple. A school or college was the setting for 12.3 percent of the total incidents attributed to a religious bias. (Based on Table 10.)

Incidents involving bias against a sexual orientation also occurred most often in homes or residences—30.3 percent of the 1,239 incidents reported in 2003. Highways, roads, alleys, or streets were the locations of 25.0 percent of the incidents motivated by a sexual-orientation bias, and schools or colleges were the locations for 11.9 percent of those incidents. (Based on Table 10.)

A residence or home was the setting for 29.8 percent of the 1,026 hate crime incidents involving the victim's ethnicity/national origin. Highways, roads, alleys, or streets were the locations of 17.4 percent of such incidents, and schools or colleges were the scenes of 8.2 percent of those incidents. (Based on Table 10.)

Of the 33 hate crime incidents in which the offender was driven by a bias against a disability, 13 took place at a home or residence. A school or college was the scene of 6 of these bias-motivated incidents, and a highway, road, alley, or street was the location for 4 incidents. The remainder of these hate crime incidents occurred in various other and unknown locations. (See Table 10.)

Concerning the 4 multiple-bias incidents reported in 2003, 2 occurred at residences or homes, 1 happened at a restaurant, and 1 took place at a school or college. (See Table 10.)

[1] The term victim may refer to a person, business, institution, or society as a whole.

[2] The term known offender does not imply that the identity of the suspect is known, but only that an attribute of the suspect has been identified, which distinguishes him/her from an unknown offender.

[3] A multiple-bias incident occurs only when two or more offense types are committed in a single incident. In a situation where there is more than one offense type, the agency can indicate a different bias motivation for each offense type. In the case of a single offense type, only one bias motivation can be indicated.

[1]The actual number of incidents is 7,489. However, the column figures will not add to the total because incidents may include more than one offense type, and these are counted in each appropriate offense type category.

[2]The term victim may refer to a person, business, institution, or society as a whole.

[3]The term known offender does not imply that the identity of the suspect is known, but only that an attribute of the suspect has been identified, which distinguishes him/her from an unknown offender. The actual number of known offenders is 6,934. However, the column figures will not add to the total because some offenders are responsible for more than one offense type, and they are, therefore, counted more than once in this table.

[4]Includes additional offenses collected in the NIBRS.

[2]The term multiple races, group is used to describe a group of offenders comprised of individuals of varying races.

[1]A multiple-bias incident occurs only when two or more offense types are committed in a single incident. In a situation where there is more than one offense type, the agency can indicate a different bias motivation for each offense type. In the case of a single offense type, only one bias motivation can be indicated.

Section II—Jurisdictional Hate Crime Statistics, 2003

In 2003, 11,909 agencies provided 1 to 12 months of hate crime data to the national Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program. Of those agencies, 16.5 percent (1,967 agencies) reported a total of 7,489 incidents. The remaining 83.5 percent of agencies indicated that no instances of hate crimes occurred within their jurisdiction.

The data presented in this section provide aggregate state totals and individual agency breakdowns of bias-motivated incidents. Table 12 furnishes for each state the total number of participating agencies, the population represented, the number of agencies that submitted hate crime incidents, and the number of incidents reported. Data for individual agencies then appear in either Table 13 or Table 14: Table 13 provides data from those agencies that submitted one or more hate crime incidents in any of their reports, and Table 14 shows those agencies that submitted reports indicating that no instances of hate crimes occurred. In addition, Tables 13 and 14 present the data alphabetically by state with each state subdivided by agency type, i.e., cities, universities and colleges, metropolitan counties, nonmetropolitan counties, state police agencies, other agencies, and other agencies—tribal. The data published for universities and colleges represent reported crime from only those individual university/college law enforcement agencies that contributed to the UCR Program; the tables do not include educational institutions whose hate crime data were reported through the local law enforcement agency. Both tables also provide the number of quarters for which each agency contributed hate crime data to the UCR Program. (See Methodology.)

Appendix A—Hate Crime Statistics Act

HATE CRIME STATISTICS ACT
(AS AMENDED, 28 USC § 534)

§ "[Sec. 1.] (a) This Act may be cited as the 'Hate Crime Statistics Act.'

"(b)(1) Under the authority of section 534 of title 28, United States Code, the Attorney General shall acquire data, for each calendar year, about crimes that manifest evidence of prejudice based on race, religion, disability, sexual orientation, or ethnicity, including where appropriate the crimes of murder, non-negligent manslaughter; forcible rape; aggravated assault, simple assault, intimidation; arson; and destruction, damage or vandalism of property.

"(2) The Attorney General shall establish guidelines for the collection of such data including the necessary evidence and criteria that must be present for a finding of manifest prejudice and procedures for carrying out the purposes of this section.

"(3) Nothing in this section creates a cause of action or a right to bring an action, including an action based on discrimination due to sexual orientation. As used in this section, the term 'sexual orientation' means consensual homosexuality or heterosexuality. This subsection does not limit any existing cause of action or right to bring an action, including any action under the administrative Procedure Act or the All Writs Act [5 USCS §§ 551 et seq. or 28 USCS § 1651].

"(4) Data acquired under this section shall be used only for research or statistical purposes and may not contain any information that may reveal the identity of an individual victim of a crime.

"(5) The Attorney General shall publish an annual summary of the data acquired under this section.

"(c) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section through fiscal year 2002.

"Sec. 2. (a) Congress finds that —

"(1) the American family life is the foundation of American Society,

"(2) Federal policy should encourage the well-being, financial security, and health of the American family,

"(3) schools should not de-emphasize the critical value of American family life.

"(b) Nothing in this Act shall be construed, nor shall any funds appropriated to carry out the purpose of the Act be used, to promote or encourage homosexuality."
